Instructor: David Ravetch

Office: Anderson D-404

Office Hours: TR: 7AM, 12:10PM
Due to the large number of students in the class, there may be many students wishing to make use of office hours. Please be prepared by having questions written down, by having attempted problems ready when asking about homework, etc., to insure that we make efficient use of our time together.

E-Mail: david.ravetch@anderson.ucla.edu
(This should be used for brief correspondence only. Explanations of challenging concepts should be handled during office hours.)

There may be periodic emails sent out to enrolled students during the quarter. Students should make sure that the registrar’s office has an updated email account.

Required Texts:

Course Web Site:

...or go to http://ccle.ucla.edu, click on, “My Sites,” and follow the directions.

Class Handouts: All class materials and outlines will be posted to the website. Chapter handouts are class notes, carefully organized to assist you in taking notes during class. You will need to download and print these materials and bring them to class each day.

Public Accounting Firms Are Sponsoring Teaching Assistants

Mgmt 1B...Your TA’s:

Michael Gold        Ernst & Young   TA
Ivan Hsu            Deloitte TA

Other sponsored TA’s

1A  Conley Patton     Moss Adams   TA
1A  Shawn Merani      PricewaterhouseCoopers TA
1A  Bryan Meyer       KPMG TA
Course Objectives:
1. To understand accounting principles and their applications.
2. To understand accounting for partnerships.
3. To understand accounting for a corporation, including stockholders’ equity, bonds, consolidation, and the corporate financial statements.
4. To learn about investment choices.
5. To learn about individual taxation.
6. To understand the accounting and decision making processes for a manufacturing entity.

Instructor’s Responsibilities:
1. To be on time for class.
2. To be prepared to teach students information in ways that will promote learning during class sessions.
3. To be available to students.

Students’ Responsibilities:
1. This class is an impacted course. No drops will be allowed after the second week. Decide today that you are ready to commit the resources necessary to be successful in this class.
2. Attendance is mandatory. Punctuality is necessary. Please do not ask instructor for notes for missed class time. Office hours and emails are not to be used in lieu of going to class.
3. Homework must be completed on a timely basis. Assigned homework should be completed after the instructor has presented material in class. Homework will not be collected, but on every exam there will be something from homework. Accounting needs time to be digested. In most cases, cramming for exams will result in less than desired results.
4. Many students have found it helpful to read the chapter before instructor lectures on it.
5. Please turn off all cellular phones, beepers, and other distracting electronic devices when you enter the lecture hall. No laptop computers, iPhones, etc., should be used during class. No texting. No email. This is distracting for the instructor and other students.
6. Do not fall behind.

Prerequisites:
Management 1A or the equivalent. This should not be your first accounting course, nor should Management 1A and Management 1B be taken concurrently.

Grading:
Each of the three midterm exams will constitute one-third of the course grade. The exams are challenging, forcing you to understand accounting principles, not to memorize them. Accounting is a meticulous process. The process is as important as the solution. You will be required to show all work that leads to a solution in order to receive credit. No make up exams will be given.

Exam coverage will consist of material presented in class and homework problems. Material in the book, not presented in class, will not appear on exams.

You may use a non-graphing calculator to assist you on the examinations. No cell phones.

All exams must be completed in pencil.

Please bring a student ID to each examination.
Notes on Homework:
1. Review class materials, including the redoing of class problems. Review corresponding material in textbook. Do multiple choice (M/C) and Mini Exercises (M) as a warmup drill. During this time, you may use text and notes to help you. Then, go to the exercises (E) and problems (P) and do them as if you are taking an exam: no notes, no book.
2. Do not look at any solutions until you have completed each homework problem. Your goal is to get a high percentage of the homework correct the first time.
3. All problems (P) listed in the homework are from series A at the end of the chapter.

Note: What follows is a tentative schedule and is subject to revision, including dates of midterm examinations.
