Managers’ Club raised money to send Autry to Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio, for six weeks to learn how to use the bike, he said.

Autry, 32 at the time of the accident, had never had an injury worse than a broken bone from a starting-point mishap. Extremely lucky, considering.

Anybody that rides horses, if they say they’ve never been thrown, they’ve never rode many horses. “Come back will, you’re gonna come off a hundred times.” And I ride a Thoroughbred, from that age to the present day.

At the University of Kentucky Hospital were a blur. A surgeon braced his back with steel rods. For the next 2 1⁄2 months, Autry was a guinea pig for almost every treatment. He visited his friends at the training center would be the last.

It was a long, lonely winter at the University of Kentucky for the disabled Autry. He learned to drive on Atlanta’s frantic freeway system, a frank start to his rehabilitation. He learned to drive with hand controls. The Escape is customized with hand controls.
