TV land reveals extreme kindness

By CHASTEY SOUTHER

The Illinois-based burger chain was named for its founder, who opened the first such establishment in 1921. The company is now an international chain with locations in several countries around the world.

The new house, built by Lini George Homes and designed by architects Thomas and Braden, has been praised for its efficient use of space and its beautiful landscaping.

Meanwhile, the 2001 World Series winning Boston Red Sox have announced that they will be playing a three-game series against the New York Yankees in March 2002.

Bomb strikes funeral, killing 25 Iraqis

The bombing occurred during a funeral service for several people who had been killed in a previous attack in the area.

Assad: Syria's man in hot seat

By BASHAR BASSIL

The Syrian president, who has been in power since 1970, has faced increasing pressure from both within and outside his country. His government has been criticized for its human rights record and its support for terrorism.

In the single deadliest attack since the start of the conflict, a car bomb killed at least 25 people and wounded more than 50 in a Shi'ite neighborhood in Damascus.

Gordon rules bang-up race

By JAMES WADSWORTH

The Democratic candidate, who had a strong showing in the primary, has won a tight race against his Republican opponent in the general election.

In St. Petersburg, a local company has been recognized for its innovative approach to packaging.

A local attorney who specializes in immigration law is helping Syrian refugees settle in the area.

A nationwide survey has found that most people believe that the war is not going well for the United States.

In the Times

The Times Today

The independent newspaper is known for its investigative reporting and its commitment to print and online journalism.

In the Xpress

The local magazine is a source of news and information for the local community.

The Floridian

The local weekly covers events and developments in the area.

The Florida Times-Union

The daily newspaper is the largest in Florida and covers news from throughout the state.
Psychologist whose research helped end segregation dies

New York Times

Kenneth B. Clark, the psychologist whose research showed the detrimental effect of school segregation on the development of the U.S. Supreme Court held to school critics were fighting a losing battle.

ON THE COVER: Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and President John F.
Kennedy, June 1963.

Mr. Clark was a leader in the civil rights movement who said died of cancer, Wednesday, Jan.
22, 1971, at his home in New York.

Mr. Clark, who was 59 years old, was the first black person
appointed to the psychology
faculty at the University of California, Berkeley, in 1950. He became a tenured instructor in
the city college system in New York in the early 1960s.

In 1963, the first black person
appointed to the psychology
faculty at the University of California, Berkeley, in 1950. He
became a tenured instructor in
the city college system in New York in the early 1960s.

In 1963, the first black person
appointed to the psychology
faculty at the University of California, Berkeley, in 1950. He
became a tenured instructor in
the city college system in New York in the early 1960s.

In 1963, the first black person
appointed to the psychology
faculty at the University of California, Berkeley, in 1950. He
became a tenured instructor in
the city college system in New York in the early 1960s.

In 1963, the first black person
appointed to the psychology
faculty at the University of California, Berkeley, in 1950. He
became a tenured instructor in
the city college system in New York in the early 1960s.

In 1963, the first black person
appointed to the psychology
faculty at the University of California, Berkeley, in 1950. He
became a tenured instructor in
the city college system in New York in the early 1960s.

In 1963, the first black person
appointed to the psychology
faculty at the University of California, Berkeley, in 1950. He
became a tenured instructor in
the city college system in New York in the early 1960s.

In 1963, the first black person
appointed to the psychology
faculty at the University of California, Berkeley, in 1950. He
became a tenured instructor in
the city college system in New York in the early 1960s.

In 1963, the first black person
appointed to the psychology
faculty at the University of California, Berkeley, in 1950. He
became a tenured instructor in
the city college system in New York in the early 1960s.